Report of the Superintendent of Schools

To the School Board and Citizens of Hebron:

In accordance with the requirements of the school law of Maine, I respectfully submit the annual report of the Superintendent of Schools for the year ending February 1, 1929.

The past year has been very successful from an educational standpoint. It is more clearly evident that the thirty-six week school year results in more efficient preparation of our eighth grade pupils. The reason for this is apparent. In a system having less than thirty-six weeks in a year the pupils are supposed to complete nine grammar grades, although they have been permitted to take examinations for high school at the end of the eighth grade. Inasmuch as it is the usual thing for pupils in the larger villages to complete the grammar school in the eighth grade, it is natural that the boys and girls in our smaller towns should want to enter high school from the eighth grade. There are several instances at present where the eighth grade pupils have already completed certain subjects and are spending the rest of the year in a general review of the subjects. This is of great value. Under the thirty-two week plan it too often occurred that certain of the subjects were not completed at all before going to high school.

There is another reason why it appears that the eighth grade pupils are better prepared than formerly; that is because of better trained teachers. The training is supported by added experience. Sixty per cent of our teachers have had normal or special training of more than one year beyond high school. The other forty per cent have had normal training of a little less than a year's value. The majority of our teachers have had several years' experience in teaching and in no case is the teaching experience less than two years.

The professional attitude of the various teachers is well represented in professional organizations. The teachers of Hebron joined the Maine Teachers' Association without an exception. We had almost a hundred per cent enrollment in the Oxford County Teachers' Association. Forty per cent joined the National Educational Association. Our teachers have joined these voluntarily in spite of the expense involved because they have a keen sense that the work of the modern teacher should be as professional as that of the doctor or lawyer. The psychology of child life is stressed with newer importance. Modern pedagogy requires the teacher to know something of the psychology of individual differences in relation to pupil activity.

Pupil activity has been manifested in various channels. Pupil responsibility is taught by distributing incidental duties among the pupils. One boy may supervise the boys' cloak room; another may be responsible for collecting the waste paper on a certain day or week; another may be responsible for the condition of the blackboard; while yet another may be inspector of desks or personal appearance. These are only a few of the ways in which the boys and girls of today are being taught that society is what we make it.

Various entertainments have been given during the year. These have lent life and interest to the several communities. Such activities, outside of the curriculum of school work, require time and patience on the part of the teacher.

National Education week was observed by every school. The results were very satisfactory. Between fifty and sixty people have visited the schools during the fall term, mostly during Education Week. While this is a substantial increase, an invitation is extended for parents and friends to visit more often. One may see the improvement of a piece of road by riding over it, but he may ride by the schoolhouse with little knowledge of the improvement of instruction that has taken place in the last few years.

Special emphasis has been made this year on the better teaching of reading. The first session of the teacher's meeting this year was devoted entirely to this subject. A demonstration was given; questions were asked; and a new zeal awakened on the part of teachers to learn more of how to teach this important fundamental. The results have been more satisfactory than anticipated. Better teaching has produced better reading. There has been a noticeable improvement in phrasing, while "word" reading has become less conspicuous.

The textbooks are in fair condition, except for age. In most cases the schools are well supplied in quantity. What I suggest is that certain of these old books be taken out entirely and replaced with modern books at the beginning of the next school year. Supplementary readers are being placed in the schools as fast as consistent. This is essential to the cultivation of better reading.

The attendance has been good considering the necessary absences due to the flu, mumps, diphtheria and certain other complications less serious. There has been an unusual amount of sickness. The enrollment has continued about the same as last year. In one school the enrollment has become a major question. The Sodom School has only seven registered pupils at present. It is a question whether it is profitable to continue this school next year. If it is kept open, it should be repaired by putting in windows to improve the lighting arrangement and also by the laying of a new floor.

Extensive repairs have been made at the Brighton Hill School, placing it among the best of our schoolhouses. The Nelson School needs a new flag pole for next year, and the Academy School should have some winter protection such as an entry or vestibule around the front door. The condition of the school buildings as a whole is excellent and conforms to the state requirements.

We have been glad to welcome two new teachers into our schools this year—Miss Alline MacDonald and Mrs. Hilda E. Renwick. It has been a pleasure to work with teachers and School Board, who have been co-operative, conscientious and aware of the responsibility of guiding youthful minds.
